KING MAY SUFFER A RELAPSE.

It Is Pointed Out That No One Has Seen Him but the Members of the Royal Family and His Physicians.

NOT YET ABLE TO SIT UP.

Premier's Guarded Reply in Commons to Question Concerning General Holiday Also Arouses Pessimism.

London, July 26.-Copyright, 1902.)-Will there be a coronation on August 9, as announced officially, or will there be another postponement? There is no gainsaying the fact that general feeling in the matter is very pessimistic.

It is true the doctors' reports about the King's progress are very satisfactory. The complete rest his Majesty is now enjoying on board the royal yacht is proving of great service to his physique.

But, apart from what is allowed to be made public officially, not a whisper is heard from anybody who has seen the King. Nobody on the yachts cruising on the Solent ever gets the merest glimpse of the King, who is hidden behind an awning, while pleasure craft must steer a considerable distance away from the royal yacht.

Fear of a Relapse. The fear that there may be no coronation on the date fixed is intensified by the manner in which preparations are being carried on, or, rather, by the lack of preparation. Those who have duties allotted to them in connection with the ceremony have been summoned to rehearsals only two days before the date fixed, which is taken to indicate that, if need be, the event con again be postponed at the last moment.

Even with all their favorable bulletins the doctors have still some fears of a relapse, necessitating another postponement It must be remembered that the King is not yet able to get up from a recumbent position, for a story that he had been allowed to take a short walk on deck one aft-In fact, on the day on which his Majesty was supposed to have taken a walk he never came on deck at all, owing to the BRETON RESCUERS nasty weather. He is not able, or is not permitted, to move without being helped. and people are shaking their heads doubt-

No Police Regulations Yet.

Then, again, as to the outward prepara- International Meeting of Life Say tions being so far behind, no police regulations have yet been published, which is considered very strange, as the event is only a fortnight off.

Furthermore, the Prime Ministers' answer to a question in the House of Commons whether August 9 is to be a bank holiday, has not served to lessen public pessimism. The result of such inquiries as the Government has been able to make in this matter, he said, tends to show that the lasked to give prestige to the congress by balance of public opinion is in the direction of turning the customary half-holiday of Saturday into a bank holiday on the occasion of the coronation.

Why did Mr. Balfeur use such curiously halting phrases as "tends to show that the balance of public opinion is in the direction of turning," etc., in obscure reply to a direct question whether the day is to be made a general holiday or not. This reply seems to have had a rather irritating effect on the public mind because it is thought that if the coronation has been definitely fixed, as has been announced, it is now time in justice to the public that these matters should be finally settled

Stand Sents for Sale Cheap. Whether there is to be a coronation or not, it is falling very flat indeed. The elaborate decorations of some of the big mansions in the West End have been carefully preserved for the restoration of coronation day, but there will be litle or no street decoration. For instance, St. James street, which presented such a magnificent spectacle on June M. is not, I understand, to be decorated at all.

Seats on the stands alongside Westminster Abbey, which had been disposed of for as high as 25 guineas ($130), and the money returned, are now offered for use on August 9 for from 1 to 8 guineas ($5.25 to $42). So far, it is believed, there are very few takers. The shock of the King's serious illues: came so suddenly that people have not yet had time to regain heart. The foreign visitors have all gone away and the hotels are half empty. Indeed, the hotel manufacturers are anxious to let it be known generally that there is no increase in prices.

FLOODS RAGING ALL OVER TEXAS

Torrential Downpour Covers Two-Thirds of the State-Traffic Paralyzed.

COTTON CROP BADLY DAMAGED.

It Is Estimated that Loss on This Alone Will Reach the Sum of Three Million Dollars.

Dallas, Tex., July 26.-There is no imrovement in the flood and railroad situation in Texas. If anything, the situation is worse than it was last night. Rain continued to fall last night and to-day over two-thirds of the State. Great freshets prevail in the Pecus, the Colorado, the Brazes and the Trinity rivers and their tributaries. The damage to railroads will reach into the hundreds of thousands of lotters. Many miles of track must be re built, many more miles are under water, scores of washouts have occurred and umerous fron bridges washed away.

Hood County, gives it as his opinion that the damage to the cotton crop of the Lower Brazos Valley will reach from $2,000,000 to $3,600,000. No through trains have reached Dallas to-day from the West on the Texas and Pacific, and none from the South on the Missouri, Kansas and Texas, the Cotton Belt or the Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fe. The Santa Fe has lost a bridge and 1,000 feet of track between Clifton and Valley Mills. The Missouri, Kansas and Texas has several washouts and a bridge gone at the Cotton Belt crossing near Hillsboro.

It is feared that the big dam near Hillsoro will break and cause disaster. The Texas and Pacific reports that the rain last night on its line as far west as Baird was terrific. It is not known what the condition is around Blg Springs, because the town is isolated, tracks under water, wires down and many washouts to be repaired The road hopes to get into Colorado City with relief trains some time to-morrow, but loss not expect to get into Big Springs be fore Monday.

Waterbound passengers, as fast as they are reached, are being transferred by boats. One bridge near Pecos has been replaced four times since last Sunday and as often swept away. Several washouts and bridges have been repaired and made to hold near Churber, Gordon and Baird. Through trains from the east to Ri Paso are not expected to run regularly till near the end of next

A strange feature of the flood is the fact that at what is known as the Divide, at Willis Point, on the Texas and Pacific, In the last week it has rained all around that spot, but not a drop has fallen there. The rains have fallen from one end of the State to the other and the operating departments of all roads are uneasy on accoun of the liability of any and all streams to get on a rampage.

Reports from Graham, in the Panhandle, my the Brazes is much higher than during the famous rise in 1876 and that people down the river may look out for a big flood. A Waco bulletin said the Brazos had risen thirty-five feet there and the water was five feet deep in the streets of

There are washouts on the Texas Central line in the Bosque Valley, and trains are running no further west than Whitney. Two bridges over Steele Creek are gone. The Cotton Belt is cut off from Gatesville by a washout at Leon River. It is feared the Leon bridge will go.
